

Clinics at MountainHeart!

One question we get from prospective students is: "How do we provide students with "clinic" experience here at MountainHeart?"

Our students experience some great clinic experiences throughout their time in school. We have clinics using the following skills:

- Intake, Assessment & Communication
- 50 Minute Swedish Massage
- 60 Minute Swedish Massage
- Injury or Chronic Pain Treatment Massage
- Sports Massage
- On-site Chair Massage
- Pregnancy Massage
- Infant Massage
- Elderly Massage
- Transformational Neuromuscular Therapy
- Graduate Massage Clinic

All these clinic experiences are supervised by an LMT, all of which are Certified Massage Therapists and have an intimate understanding of our curriculum. They are all graduates of our school.

During most clinics each student has a partner or two who observe their work through the entire session - from intake to finish. This provides them with feed-back from all aspects of the therapeutic session. Most other types of clinic experiences are not this beneficial to the student. Our students learn immensely from these experiences.

Discussions, questions, and treatment options are done in any class both before and after clinics and homework!

Some students ask us: "I was told by a school that I must find a school that has an 'open to the public' clinic, why is that, and why doesn't MountainHeart have that instead?"

Let me answer that this way:

Massage Schools generally love having a clinic like that. The student pays for it and so does the public, so it is a good source of revenues for them.

It does provide some good feed-back for students, but usually much less than they get the way we do it.

So why don't we do it?

We believe our method is better, especially as it is combined with our Therapy Integration Classes.

We are located in a beautiful, small mountain town. We have chosen not to compete with the therapists here making a living doing Massage Therapy. All of our clinics are free and supervised home works are free. This educates people about Massage Therapy so they then seek it out more often.

So, as you can see, our students get a unique and comprehensive education here at MountainHeart. We would love for you to join us!
